SMITH'S KIDNEY TONIC—TR. IT.

"I did not have you wait upon me, because I knew it would distress you, but now that you draw near from the swelling of Jordan" he rushed back to the shore of life to write that tender message to his son:

"Wherever thou art buried promise me that your mother shall be buried by my side." "I will do so," said the son, his heart filled with the woes of his mother, who had suffered tortures of a malignant disease that he might write his permanent memoirs that she should not want when he was gone.

"And the tender was his care. To his son said:

"I hope mother will bear up bravely."

"To quiet her anxiety, he wrote: 'Do as I do; take it quietly. I give you my word the earth will not move under your feet while I live.' If the earth moved, I would try just as hard to get rest in the meantime! Would she have holy vigils through the living night?" He wrote her:

"Go to sleep and feel happy; that is what I want you to do, and go to sleep to try for, I am happy when out of pain. Consider how happy you ought to be."

"And such was the tenderness of his love and solicitude for her and her surprise at hearing him say such words. He had written a letter, found after his death, in which he said he had probably caused the disease, mischievous day after day, without knowing that she would find it at last:

"Look after our dear children and remove the remains of the dead from the cottage in which we lived, the trees around the house, the disc of the rising sun was soon pushed aside and the atmosphere was cleared of all obstructions to the view. The half-hour gun boomed regularly from the opposite hill, and the day appointed for the removal of the remains of the illustrious dead. So the mourners gathered at the grave, and the strength and the cloud that obscured the sun was dispelled by the rising day. Soon the people that the time was fast approaching for the removal of the remains of the dead general foregathered at the cottage in which they had been staying, and the soldiers encamped on the grounds surrounding the cottage received orders at daybreak to prepare for their departure, and in less than half an hour the white cars were ready to start, bearing the remains of the dead, until we meet in another, and, I trust, a better world. You will find this on my person after my demise."

"Do not be grieved for show yet be made public recognition of God by his faithful and conscientious attendance upon divine worship. He was not a bigot. While he despised the priest as the safeguard of a free people, he accepted him as the channel of faith and worship. He claimed that education should be non-sectarian, but not non-religious.

"His Daily public speech on education was a great service to the community, but against ignorance and superstition. The order issued during the war, excluding certain Jewish traders from giving military district, did not originate with him, but he was the safeguard of a free people to accept him. I hold him in high esteem as he had opportunity."

On one of those deplorable April days when hope revived in all our hearts, I said to him: 'You are a man of Providence; God made you to instruct the world, and call the nations to conversion.'

"More was the pensioner of his kindly bountiful. In private, unseen life, he bore many of the fruits of the spirit. He loves his enemies more than his friends, but his love is not of the world by degrees, but as great as he had opportunity."

THE EVENING BULLETIN
WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 5, 1885.

HON. JOHN G. CARLISLE is at Washington City.

THERE were 3,807 new cases of cholera in Spain on Monday and 1,364 deaths.

It is expected that thirty or forty consuls will be appointed by the President this week.

The vote for the constitutional convention was throughout the State, and, as usual, it is lost.

The indications are that the Democrats have gained a member of the Legislature in Garrard County.

It is estimated that the fortune of General Grant's family will amount to about one million dollars.

THE STATE geologists have discovered a spring of white sulphur water at Orangeburg, which is said to be of a very fine quality.

HART BOSWELL, independent Republican, was elected to the Legislature in Fayette County over Charles M. Albert, Democrat, by about 50 majority.

RETURNS from Boyd County indicate that Burdett and Gambill, Republican candidates for Senator and Representative are elected by small majorities.

THE regular monthly coinage statement issued shows that the total coinage executed at the United States mints during the month of July amounted to $1,900,000.

NONE of the miners at the Norton Iron Works, have as yet signed the scale, but it is thought probable the old feeders will go to work soon at a reduction of their wages.

TWELVE hundred miners in the Massillon district, Tuscarawas Valley, have refused to accept the reduction demanded by the operators, and a general strike is expected.

THE Postmaster General has ordered that all post offices shall be closed next Saturday, the day of General Grant's funeral, between the hours of one and five o'clock p.m.

COL. S. J. M. MAJON's majority for Representative in the Legislature from Franklin will probably reach 1,000. He received in Franklin, 405 more votes than his competitor.

THE issue of standard silver dollars from the mints during the week ended August 1, 1885, was $253,492. The issue during the corresponding period of last year was $25,497.

CATERPILLARS have appeared in the cotton fields in several counties of South Carolina, and the boll-worm in one or two. Unless their ravages are great the crop will be the largest for years.

DR. AYERICK, who went to Washington a few days ago to look after the Nice cause, didn't get it for the reason that the place had been filled shortly after it had been declined by Hon. Boyd Winchester.

GENERAL ROBINSON is moving carefully in the matter of his appointments. The number of positions in the district having been reduced, he can only make appointments as vacancies occur, and a number of renewals are necessary before there will be any vacancies.

IT is understood that the President within a few days will fill the vacant Second Lieutenancies existing in the line of the army from civil life. There will be ten vacancies after the non-commissioned officers who are now being examined shall have been assigned to regiments.

THE YEOMAN says: "We learn that an act will be prepared for the next Legislature which looks to restricting the charges of telephone companies for the use of their lines and instruments. The Illinois Legislature has already passed a law which forbids their charging a rental of more than a specified sum."

L. F. MANN, of Nicholas County, the Democratic nominee defeated O. S. Denning, Republican, of Robertson for the Legislature from the two counties by about two hundred and fifty majority. J. W. Tate, for Treasurer, carried Nicholas County by eight hundred. Prohibition carried in the Blue Lick precincts.

Failure of the installment Plan.

Judge Snickers, the only child of Judge Snickers, of Austin, wanted somebody to play with her. She said:

"Mamma, I want a little brother. The little girl next door has got a nice new one. Why can't I have one?"

Mrs. Snickers shook her head doubtfully.

"Why can't I have one, mamma?"

"But mamma, you didn't say to give any money when you got the piano and the sewing machine. You pay a little every month by installment. Can't you get a baby now, and pay for him by installments?"

On reflection Mrs. Snickers decided that the installment plan would not work, present contract for the same amount or increase, if any, shall be necessary to the complete efficiency of the service.

The commission will next inquire into the clerical force of the New York and other offices not employed, the quantity and distribution of allowances now made for those offices; the distribution of clerical service at those offices and their stations, and into the application for increased allowance at the New York office. The commission will begin work immediately.

Venezuelan Minister.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—The Venezuelan minister, Mr. Sotelo, has received a copy of the proclamation addressed by President Crespo, of Venezuela, on the 19th day of July to the citizens of that country, calling upon them to support the revolution there, which lasted less than one month.

President Crespo complimented the patriotic enthusiasm of the loyal people of Venezuela for supporting the revolution, and directed to his own country and conduct as constitutional head of the government in bringing about this result President Crespo says: "The performance of my duty deserves the thanks of all. I will place it upon the forehead of the most illustrious citizens to whom I render hereby the nation's thanks as well as my cordial congratulations."

Mr. Hougham.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Hughes East, private secretary to Vice President, Hughes, denies the published stories that Mr. Hougham is making a play for presidential honors. He says he is not interested in politics, Mr. East says, and does not care to get through the excitement of a political campaign incidental to his candidacy. The vice president will be satisfied to retire in 1888 as vice president.

All About Magazines and Commemorating General Grant.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Now that the partitioning of the world into fiefs and in disputation, literature begins to come to the fore. Families, tourists, guests at watering places, spas and country houses by the thousand turn to elegy, to the magazine and novels. Writers of family books pour the gloom their daughters over Mudie's Smith's and the Grosvenor libraries. Even tiresome old fables like Sir Richard Cross exchange blue books for Mrs. Lytton's "Cuckoo Clock," "Clown," "Kirkland," whose hero falls in love six times, never wisely or well.

The magazines of the month are all out, representing one of the most popular channels of "pulpit," art, news, with what little wisdom the London magazines are edited," which weakness assists in accounting for the immense circulation of American magazines and the favor with which they are received.

Reviews, however, are unusually attractive for a silly or any other reason.

Mr. Turnbull, a Chicago barrister, surgeon, the Duke of Argyle, and the Earl of Sheldene, and other political and literary pundits with an article in the Nineteenth Century showing that the English government is really democratic, while the United States government is really aristocratic, while the president's veto power equals two-thirds of the legislature; while the president is not popularly elected and fairly elected, and the Prince of Wales is not within the supreme court can set aside all statutes if so disposed. Already British editors noticing the article take refuge in the paralyzing diplomatic exclamation, "Oh fairies!"

Wait Whittemore emerges from his retreat in the same review with a fresh poetic "yawl," as the late Henry Tuckerman the critic, used to term it. The subject is "Fanaticism," and is written with a certain panache blank verse, evidently written after the poet has battled with the underwood and been lifted off his feet by the erratic surf. A characteristic line is this:

But a perfect treason can appear in prose in the Forgingly, by J. Dykes, a literary well known at the Royal Yacht club. He pretends to be writing "Yacht Racing," but it is a heliotropic exercise in description of the sensations of the owner of a yacht during a race. It is minutely sketched and will delight all participants in summer cruising and shows that the writer is a master word smith.

The monarchical article in the reviews is admitted to be Elwin Arnold, of the Daily Telegraph, and the "Light of Asia," in the same periodical. On Death and Taxes, the author, generally speaking, the article might be adjudged the best poem yet from Mr. Arnold's pen. One sentence suggests the imagery of the whole article. That is apparently founded on Longfellow's idea:

"Death arrives not like M. de Paris, to strip a criminal or lay even from him his life, but as a mother hailing her children to sleep that they may wake ready for play on a fresh morning."

The publishers are hamcock-swinging, as it were, and busied with good will toward their Christmas readers. But the library tales confess to novelty in a new edition of "The Little Red Riding Hood," and to grapple with the spirit of confusion which the poet delighted to let loose. In this edition for the first time Coleridge's verse is clearly printed, and added to the illustrations.

John Cowper Powys, a born man, for the publishers Muller & Norgate, of Covent Garden, have just issued "A History of Herod Emerging from Two Hundred Years of Calumny." The author attempts, like a clever Old Bailey advocate, to defend Herod.

one's continuing rule, his returned reputation, his family troubles and his alleged crudities, but he does not explain the origin of the time honored phrase, "out-Heroding Herod."

Dr. Hounsom may take heart from the fact that which is much easier to conceive than to receive his novel. He is about to obtain the compliment of a popular edition.

Several New York managers who were cavalier and somewhat ignorantly treated of the services of the Venusian Legation, are now employing a highly organized and efficient staff, the distribution of allowances now made for those offices; the distribution of clerical service at those offices and their stations, and into the application for increased allowance at the New York office. The commission will begin work immediately.

Venezuelan Minister.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—The Venezuelan minister, Mr. Sotelo, has received a copy of the proclamation addressed by President Crespo, of Venezuela, on the 19th day of July to the citizens of that country, calling upon them to support the revolution there, which lasted less than one month.

President Crespo complimented the patriotic enthusiasm of the loyal people of Venezuela for supporting the revolution, and directed to his own country and conduct as constitutional head of the government in bringing about this result President Crespo says: "The performance of my duty deserves the thanks of all. I will place it upon the forehead of the most illustrious citizens to whom I render hereby the nation's thanks as well as my cordial congratulations."

Care for Piles.

Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing pain in the rectum, and difficulty in urination. To some there is some association of the rectum and the bladder, and the rectum is often involved.

For the treatment of piles, Dr. Boosan's Pill is the best. It is a mixture of various herbs, which are well known for their tonic action on the rectum, and the rectum is the seat of piles.

The Memorial Procession.

The arrangements for the funeral pageant in this city on Saturday afternoon, in honor of General Grant are progressing very satisfactorily. The Mayor has issued a request that all military and civic societies join in the pageant, and that the business houses close between the hours of one and five o'clock, and citizens display emblems of mourning along the route of the procession. The members of Hauck's band, through Captain George W. Tudor, manager, have kindly volunteered their services. It is thought the East End and Aberdeen bands will do likewise. The G. A. ### A WOMAN'S QUESTION.

BY MRS. BROWNING.
Do you know you have asked for the costliest thing?

What made by the Hand of Heaven?

A woman's life?

And a woman's wonderful love?

Do you know you have asked for this priceless thing?

What a task for a toy?

Demanding what others have lived to win?

With the reckless dash of a boy?

You have written my lesson of duty out,

Now stand by the bar of my woman's soul

Until I shall question thee.

Then require your master shall always be;

Your socks and your shirts shall be whole;

I desire your heart to be as God's stars;

And pure as heaven's soul.

You require a far better thing;

A seamstress you're wanting for stockings

I look for a man and a king.

A king for a beautiful realm called home,

And a man that the maker, God,

Shall send me to rule over the first.

And say, "It is very good."

I am fair and young, but the rose will fade;

Will you love me then?" mid the falling leaves;

As you did mid the bloom of May?

Is your heart an ocean so strong and deep?

I may launch my all on its tide?

Will you let me have the bell?

On the day she is made a bride.

I require all things that are grand and true;

All things that a man should be;

How can I live without thy life?

You can not do this, a laundress and cook;

You can hire with little to pay;

But a woman's life is worth a king;

Are not to be won that way?
